

Deciding on Undergraduate Opportunities in Global Health

Some excellent resources for evaluating global health opportunities:

Global Fair-trade Learning

University of Iowa Ethics Abroad Checklist

University of Washington Seven Question for Evaluating Student Global Health Programs

AAMC Guidelines for Premedical and Medical Students Providing Patient Care During Clinical Experiences Abroad

Ethics and Best Practice Guidelines for Training Experiences in Global Health

University of Minnesota Global Ambassadors for Patient Safety Toolkit

Unite for Sight Volunteer Ethics and Professionalism Online Course

Global Health Focus in Anthropology

Department of Anthropology

University of Vermont

509 Williams Hall

72 University Place

Burlington, VT 05405

Phone: 802-656-3884

Fax: 802-656-4406

jeanne.shea@uvm.edu

Volunteering

• See university lists of recommended volunteer programs such as those included on the UVM Anthropology of Global Health Resource Page.

• Use the UVM Career Center's guide to Assessing Organizations and Opportunities.

• Check with your academic advisor to see what they think of the program.

• See left sidebar for advice on evaluating volunteer programs.

• Reach out to past volunteers to ask how the experience was for them.

• If a past volunteer with whom you are communicating with is now an official paid representative for the organization, keep that in mind as you weigh information.

Internships

• See university lists of recommended internships such as those included on the UVM Anthropology of Global Health Resource Page and Handshake

• Use the UVM Career Center's guide to Assessing Organizations and Opportunities.

• Check with your major/minor department advisor if you would like to inquire about the possibility of receiving credit for the internship.

• See the left sidebar for advice on evaluating internship programs.

• Reach out to past interns to ask how the experience was for them.

• Reach out to alums in Global Health positions through UVM LinkedIn.

Study Abroad

- See university lists of recommended internships such as those included on the UVM Anthropology of Global Health Resource Page
- Contact the UVM Office of International Education to start the required steps to studying abroad.
- Check with the UVM Transfer Affairs office.
- Check with your academic advisor to ask if they would recommend the program.
- Check with your major/ minor department advisor if you would like to inquire about receiving credit toward your major or minor.
- See the left sidebar for advice on evaluating study abroad programs.
- Reach out to past students to ask how the program was for them.
- Inquire about internship opportunities that might be offered by your specific study abroad program.